Options Replace Reduced Cotton

AUBURN, Ala.—Under the cotton option plan of the Agricultural Adjustment Act, the grower who removes a portion of his crop from production this season may take option for the same amount removed from cultivation. The cotton on which this option may be taken is held now by the government and is available to those growers co-operating to reduce the existing surplus.

Therefore, those growers who do co-operate to remove a part of their crop from production this season may be assured that they will have as much cotton to sell this fall as if part of their present crop had not been removed from cultivation.

It is grower reduces his production this year by say ten bales, this grower will be paid a fair price for the land so removed from the cultivation of cotton. In addition, he will be given an option on ten bales of Government cotton at a price of six cents a pound. This option costs him nothing and if the price goes down, the farmer has no obligation in the matter, but if it goes up he receives the benefit of the increased price.

In this way, the cooperating farmer will have just as much cotton to sell this fall as he would have had normally, and is saved the expense of cultivating, harvesting, ginning, and marketing the part removed from cultivation. He will also receive an immediate cash rental payment on the land removed from cotton production and will have the crop produced on his remaining acreage to sell on the open market.

It is expected that Alabama cotton acreage will be reduced $88,000 acres and that growers of the State will receive around $10,000,000 in cash benefits.

BIRTHDAY SINGING

On the third Sunday in June the people of Zion Chapel and surrounding communities met at Grandma Fuller's to celebrate her 90th birthday. Children present were 33, and great-grandchildren 33, and great-great-grandchildren 1.

A 9:30 o'clock the Sacred Harp singers met in the house and were called to order by former chairman, T. F. Sanders, singing page 47. By motion the class went into organization for the day. Officers were elected as follows: T. F. Sanders, chairman; A. J. Fuller, vice chairman; J. M. Hurd and J. H. Jackson, committee; H. W. Dean, secretary. Chairman sang one song and committee reported a lesson by four, three songs each: D. F. Wilks, J. J. Sanders, Milton Wilkerson, Morgan Matthews. Recess five minutes.

House called to order by chairman and lesson by four: E. A. Wilks, J. S. J. Sanders, J. M. Johnson, J. W. Hurd. Recess five minutes. House called to order by chairman, lesson by four: John Hussey, Roy Jackson, Hiram Rugg, J. J. Fuller. One and one-half hour intermission. At the noon hour a bountiful dinner was spread and everybody seemed to enjoy the increased price.

At 1:30 o'clock the house was called to order by chairman, lesson by five: Ed Kelley, A. W. Matthews, J. B. Dean, Dewey Wilks, J. J. Deal. Recess five minutes. House called to order by chairman, lesson by five: S. R. Morgan, Jeff Brown, A. L. Reese, H. W. Dean, J. H. Jackson. Chairman sang page 47 and closed with prayer by S. R. Morgan.

Resolution of Thanks—We, the singers and visitors, tender our heartfelt thanks to Zion Chapel and surrounding communities and especially do we thank the good ladies for the bountiful dinner they spread before us at the noon hour. May God bless them with His choicest blessing and may we be permitted to meet at Grandma Fuller's on many more such occasions. H. W. DEAN, Sec'y.

ANNUAL MEMORIAL SINGING AT BRADSHAW JULY 15

We have been requested to sing the annual Archer Memorial singing to be held at Bradshaw on July 15. This is one of the best Sacred Harp singings in the county and plans are being made this year to keep the singing up to the standard. Singers are invited to come and bring their books and a well filled basket.

Mrs. B. S. Franklin, who has been in Sylacauga, has returned to Elba. Her many friends will be glad to know that she is much improved.

FOR DELEGATE TO CONVENTION

I hereby announce my candidacy for delegate to the Prohibition National Convention, subject to the election to be held on July 15. I am for repeal of the 18th Amendment so as to give Alabama and the several states their inalienable right to deal with the prohibition question in their own way. JAMES E. FOLSOM.

FARMER JONES AND HIS COW PEN

BY W. M. BRUNSON

I wish to give you the benefit of my observation and experience as to poisonous plants and products on the farm. The ordinary cocklebur causes the average farmer more loss than any other plant or product of the farm. There is no harm or danger from the cocklebur after it develops into a weed, neither is there danger in the dry seed, except that they are very annoying and painful if socked upon to get them in their mouths. However, the young sprouts just as it comes through the ground seem to be very poisonous to hogs, and especially to young pigs. It is out of the question to raise young pigs where there are cockleburs sprouting, provided the pigs are hungry. A well-fed pig or never eats cocklebur sprouts, but if the pig is hungry, he will eat them about two or three sprouts are sufficient to do him. It will only take a few hours of your time to destroy all the cockleburs around your premises, and in my opinion no good farmer will allow cockleburs to grow where he is growing hogs. The same weeding knife which you use to destroy litterweeds in your pasture is exactly what you need to destroy cockleburs in your field. You will watch closely for one, two and destroy these weeds, if you find them. It will only take a few hours of your time to destroy all the cockleburs around your premises, and in my opinion no good farmer will allow cockleburs to grow where he is growing hogs.

One of the most delicious foods raised on a farm is butterbeans, but butterbean hulls are very injurious to cows and calves. Butterbean hulls have very sharp points and it might be that this point punctures the cow's stomach. I am not advised as to just how the butterbean hulls injure your cow, but I do know that it is unsafe to feed butterbean hulls to cows and calves. Every roasting ear shuck and cob and all pea hulls should be fed to your cows, but by all means do not allow them to eat butterbean hulls. I do not know of any other vegetable used in this section which carries a hull or cover which cannot be utilized except butterbeans. I am not advised as to your hogs, but I would also suggest that you do not give your butterbean hulls to hogs.

There is a weed or herb which grows in pastures in this section which is very poisonous to your cows and every farmer should be familiar with this plant. It is commonly known as button ivy, and you should have no difficulty in finding someone who can describe the plant and show it to you. Button ivy grows in damp places and is generally found in rich spots or around logs and chunks. It grows round and about the size of your thumb nail, of a deep green color and grows on a stem from one to three inches in length. As a rule your cows and calves will not eat button ivy, but some times it grows thick in your pastures and they get some of the leaves and if they get very much of it, it will kill them. Every good farmer in this section and every man in town who has a cow pasture should stay on the watch out for button ivy and should see that it is all destroyed.

The writer of this article is a great believer in following the man who succeeds. There is a man in Coffee County, Marvin Weatherford, who is not only a good man but who is also a most successful farmer. Marvin is now preparing two acres of peas for his milk cows. He always milks two cows and he plants an acre per cow the latter part of June every year as a pasture. He plants his peas in the drill and works them about twice, but he does not try to destroy all the grass in the middles. When his peas begin to turn yellow, he begins putting his cows in the patch for just a short time. After a few days he leaves them in this pasture. Marvin says that two milk cows will feed and clothe his family. He sells butter and cream and uses the fertilizer saved from the cows to fertilize his patches. When his cows have eaten out this patch, he puts them in his peanut field and later puts them in his bean field. He ships a can of cream every week, but he does not buy any cow feed. His skim milk and butter milk goes to his chickens and hogs. He sells lots of chickens and eggs and also sells some hogs. He is one small farmer who sells his cotton along in the Spring months, and even during these hard times he is making a little money. He lives like a king so far as having things to eat are concerned. I wish every farmer in Southeast Alabama could visit his home and see just how he does things.

Of all the mortals on this earth, a common gossip or tattler is by far the worst, and is to be despised the most. When our Maker was passing out the different qualities and virtues to his people, the devil was at the same time making gossipers and tattlers out of his folks, and, of course, it is useless to say that we have gossipers and tattlers who do not wear pants. The sweetest and most beautiful thing on this earth is a pure, kind-hearted woman, but at the same time the vilest and most corrupt trouble-maker is a woman who gossips and tattles. No good has ever come from gossiping and as a rule

DEATH OF GERTRUDE JORDAN

The death of Gertrude Jordan of the Veterans community on June 6th was a great shock to her relatives and friends. She was 10 years, five months and sixteen days old. She was ill only two weeks, having been taken ill on the 23rd day of May. On Sunday, May 28th, she was carried to the hospital at Enterprise, but nothing could be done to relieve her, and a few days later she was returned to her home.

She was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Jordan and was a sweet, loving little girl and was loved by all who knew her. Surviving are her parents, three brothers and one sister: Noah, 7, Lloyd, 5, Betty Jean, 3, Jimmie Dean, 1, and a number of other relatives. A precious one from us is gone and a voice we loved is stilled. A place is vacant in our home that can never be filled.

Funeral services were held at Enterprise, by Rev. Joe Heasie—Written by a Friend.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to thank the people of this community for their kindness shown us during the sickness and death of our beloved daughter, Gertrude. We also thank Dr. Folsom, Dr. Gibson and Dr. Bragg for their kindness.

Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Jordan.

Messrs. Sam Sawyer, Lewis Brooks and P. G. Mathis visited in Enterprise Monday.

Farm prices advanced 17 per cent from April to May and 27 per cent from February to May. Economists say that the principal cause of the rise is due to "controlled inflation" measures passed by Congress.

Cows bred during early June or early July will calve next March and April.

A quart of milk a day may keep the dietaries. Milk is rich in both minerals and vitamins.

GO TO THE POLLS JULY 18—VOTE AGAINST INCREASED TAXATION

Help by your vote to take the heels off the necks of Alabama's already Tax Burdened people.

Because, like the farmer, working men in all walks of life would pay this tax in the end. DO NOT BE DECEIVED. No tax burden has ever been imposed which was not passed on ultimately to the consumer.

Last November the Alabama voters defeated the MILLER & FEAGIN tax raising bill by an overwhelming majority, "almost two to one." The vote stood after the final count against the Income Tax 145,689 while the vote for was 74,118.

Electric Rates In Elba To Be Lowest In State

The Alabama Utilities Company takes pleasure in notifying its customers of a reduction in the Residential and Commercial electric lighting rate. Petition for permission to lower these rates was filed with the Alabama Public Service Commission on June 12th, for the towns of Elba, Opp and Andalusia. The new lower rates will become effective when approved by the Public Service Commission.

At the present time the monthly minimum is $1.00, for which the consumer is entitled to 10 KWH, while on the new rate the minimum is the same, but the consumer is entitled to 12 1-2 KWH or 25 per cent more electricity for the same money. Furthermore, on the present rate the first 30 KWH is 10c and the next 170 KWH 8c, while on the new rate the first 30 KWH is 8c and the next 170 KWH 7 1-2c, and taking advantage of the 10 per cent discount, the net rate for the first 30 KWH is 7.2c per KWH, which we understand is the lowest rate in the State for these classes of service.

This means that a consumer with a bill of $1.80 on the present rate will be reduced to $1.44 on the new rate; a reduction of 36c, or 20 per cent.

The adoption of this new rate will not only mean that the consumer's bills will be reduced, but will allow the Consumer to use more electricity for the same amount of money and receive the benefit of the numerous electrical devices now on the market which are so helpful in the home.

"NO BLOWOUTS on My 4th of July Trip! I'm Getting New Goodyears NOW!"

YOU don't need to be told that a thin, risky tire can take all the joy out of driving—but perhaps you have never figured that it costs you money to ride on old tires, with prices on the way up—if you pay more for new tires later on.

So buy now—enjoy your big July 4th week-end—and save yourself some money.

And while you're buying—get the SAFETY of blowout protection in every ply—get the SAFETY of grip in the center of the tread. Only Goodyear can give you the double safety of Superwrist Cord in every ply—and every ply from head to head—combined with the safety of the world-famous All-Weather Tread.

You can buy Goodyears—the world's first-choice tires—for not a cent more than tires which give far less value and protection.

Prices Have Started Up! Don't wait to buy your tires!

You can see for yourself these prices are still low. Don't miss them by trying to squeeze a few more miles out of old worn-out rubber.
